Level G – Vocabulary Unit 3

cavort (v.) move about carelessly and playfully The dog park is a place to bring your dog to cavort and socialize with other dogs without any worries. credence (n.) believability; belief The people give very little credence to the governor's claims that he is innocent. decry (v.) to speak out against The taxpayers decried the increase in property taxes. dissemble (v.) to disguise or hide the truth One historian makes the argument that Ronald Reagan dissembled, lied, or kept their mouths shut to keep the American people in the dark. distraught (adj.) extremely sad or worried Robert was so distraught after losing his job that we begged him to see a doctor. eulogy (n.) a speech to honor a dead person Susan's eulogy at her husband's funeral left everyone in tears. evince (v.) to show clearly Emails that are purely personal and evince no violation of law are not considered Public Record and should not be released. exhume (v.) remove from a grave The body of the 26-year-old mother was exhumed this afternoon so police could search for more evidence.
credence (n.) believability; belief The people give very little credence to the governor's claims that he is innocent. (v.) to speak out against The taxpayers decried the increase in property taxes. One historian makes the argument that Ronald Reagan dissembled. Ided, or kept their mouths shut to keep the American people in the dark. distraught (adj.) extremely sad or worried Robert was so distraught after losing his job that we begged him to see a doctor. culogy (n.) a speech to honor a dead person Susan's culogy at her husband's funeral left everyone in tears. evince (v.) to show clearly Emails that are purely personal and evince no violation of law are not considered Public Record and should not be released. exhume (v.) remove from a grave The body of the 26-year-old mother was exhumed this afternoon so police could search for more evidence. feekless (adj.) useless; weak The story is about how two children still manage to become successful despite their feekless father. murky (adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy The future of Mr. Johnson's career remains murky. No one knows yet whether he will be suspended or fired. nefarious (adj.) extremely evil; wicked Superheroes are always fighting some nefarious villain. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer werbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words leading to many salsa experts, the piquant sauce is America's favorite condiment. Wike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vexabulary; he usually complains about vexabula	articulate	(v.) speak clearly; (adj.) well-spoken	Mark was so excited he had a difficult time articulating his plan to everyone else.
decry (v.) to speak out against The taxpayers decried the increase in property taxes. dissemble (v.) to disguise or hide the truth One historian makes the argument that Ronald Reagan dissembled, lied, or kept their mouths shut to keep the American people in the dark. distraught (adj.) extremely sad or worried Robert was so distraught after losing his job that we begged him to see a doctor. eulogy (n.) a speech to honor a dead person Susan's eulogy at her husband's funeral left everyone in tears. evince (v.) to show clearly Emails that are purely personal and evince no violation of law are not considered Public Record and should not be released. exhume (v.) remove from a grave The body of the 26-year-old mother was exhumed this afternoon so police could search for more evidence. feckless (adj.) useless; weak The story is about how two children still manage to become successful despite their feckless father. murky (adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy The future of Mr. Johnson's career remains murky. No one knows yet whether he will be suspended or fired. nefarious (adj.) extremely evil; wicked Superheroes are always fighting some nefarious villain. piquant (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive According to many salsa experts, the piquant sauce is America's favorite condiment. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest Propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) unusual Wise showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. Verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) Viscous (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	cavort	(v.) move about carelessly and playfully dissemble (v.) to disguise or hide the truth (adj.) extremely sad or worried (v.) to show clearly (v.) to show clearly (v.) to show clearly (v.) to show clearly (v.) remove from a grave (adj.) useless; weak (adj.) useless; weak (adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy (adj.) extremely evil; wicked (adj.) extremely evil; wicked (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest (adj.) unusual (adj.) unusual (adj.) unusual (adj.) unusual (adj.) unusual (adj.) unusual (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about fluids) (After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	credence	(n.) believability; belief distraught (adj.) extremely sad or worried Robert was so distraught after losing his job that we begged him to see a doctor. (n.) a speech to honor a dead person Evince (v.) to show clearly Emails that are purely personal and evince no violation of law are not considered Public Record and should not be released. Exhume (v.) remove from a grave The body of the 26-year-old mother was exhumed this afternoon so police could search for more evidence. Feckless (adj.) useless; weak The story is about how two children still manage to become successful despite their feckless father. murky (adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy The future of Mr. Johnson's career remains murky. No one knows yet whether he will be suspended or fired. nefarious (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive According to many salsa experts, the piquant sauce is America's favortic condiment. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect define the act sweet foods comes from a primordial need to get as many clarics as possible. Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. Verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. We picnicked on the verdant lawn of the castle.	decry	(v.) to speak out against	The taxpayers decried the increase in property taxes.
eulogy (n.) a speech to honor a dead person Susan's eulogy at her husband's funeral left everyone in tears. (v.) to show clearly Emails that are purely personal and evince no violation of law are not considered Public Record and should not be released. exhume (v.) remove from a grave The body of the 26-year-old mother was exhumed this afternoon so police could search for more evidence. feckless (adj.) useless; weak The story is about how two children still manage to become successful despite their feckless father. murky (adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy The future of Mr. Johnson's career remains murky. No one knows yet whether he will be suspended or fired. nefarious (adj.) extremely evil; wicked Superheroes are always fighting some nefarious villain. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity The desire to eat sweet foods comes from a primordial need to get as many calories as possible. He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) unusual Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Werbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. We picnicked on the verdant lawn of the castle. Verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) Viscous After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	dissemble	(v.) to disguise or hide the truth	dissembled, lied, or kept their mouths shut to keep the evince (v.) to show clearly Emails that are purely personal and evince no violation of law are not considered Public Record and should not be released. exhume (v.) remove from a grave The body of the 26-year-old mother was exhumed this afternoon so police could search for more evidence. feckless (adj.) uscless; weak The story is about how two children still manage to become successful despite their feckless father. murky (adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy The future of Mr. Johnson's career remains murky. No one knows yet whether he will be suspended or fired. nefarious (adj.) extremely evil; wicked Superheroes are always fighting some nefarious villain. primordial (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive According to many salsa experts, the piquant sauce is America's favorite condiment. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) unusual Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. Verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) Viscous After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess.	distraught	(adj.) extremely sad or worried law are not considered Public Record and should not be released. exhume (v.) remove from a grave The body of the 26-year-old mother was exhumed this afternoon so police could search for more evidence. feckless (adj.) useless; weak The story is about how two children still manage to become successful despite their feckless father. murky (adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy The future of Mr. Johnson's career remains murky. No one knows yet whether he will be suspended or fired. nefarious (adj.) extremely evil; wicked Superheroes are always fighting some nefarious villain. primordial (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive According to many salsa experts, the piquant sauce is America's favorite condiment. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) unusual Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. We picnicked on the verdant lawn of the castle. plants or grass) (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	eulogy	(n.) a speech to honor a dead person	• afternoon so police could search for more evidence. feckless (adj.) useless; weak The story is about how two children still manage to become successful despite their feckless father. murky (adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy The future of Mr. Johnson's career remains murky. No one knows yet whether he will be suspended or fired. nefarious (adj.) extremely evil; wicked Superheroes are always fighting some nefarious villain. piquant (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive According to many salsa experts, the piquant sauce is America's favorite condiment. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest The desire to eat sweet foods comes from a primordial need to get as many calories as possible. propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) unusual Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	evince	(v.) to show clearly	law are not considered Public Record and should not be murky (adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy The future of Mr. Johnson's career remains murky. No one knows yet whether he will be suspended or fired. nefarious (adj.) extremely evil; wicked Superheroes are always fighting some nefarious villain. piquant (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive According to many salsa experts, the piquant sauce is America's favorite condiment. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest need to get as many calories as possible. propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) unusual Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. Verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) viscous (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	exhume	(v.) remove from a grave nefarious (adj.) extremely evil; wicked Superheroes are always fighting some nefarious villain. piquant (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive According to many salsa experts, the piquant sauce is America's favorite condiment. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) unusual Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. We picnicked on the verdant lawn of the castle. viscous After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	feckless	(adj.) useless; weak	The story is about how two children still manage to become successful despite their feckless father. piquant (adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive According to many salsa experts, the piquant sauce is America's favorite condiment. primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest The desire to eat sweet foods comes from a primordial need to get as many calories as possible. propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) unusual Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	murky	(adj.) dark, gloomy; foggy primordial (adj.) having existed from the beginning; original; earliest The desire to eat sweet foods comes from a primordial need to get as many calories as possible. propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. unwonted (adj.) unusual Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) viscous (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	nefarious	(adj.) extremely evil; wicked	Superheroes are always fighting some nefarious villain.
propinquity (n.) nearness, similarity He was arrested merely because of propinquity to the killer. Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) viscous (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	piquant	(adj.) pleasantly spicy; attractive unwonted (adj.) unusual Mike showed an unwonted enthusiasm toward studying vocabulary; he usually complains about vocabulary. utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) viscous (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	primordial		= utopian (adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect Having health care for everyone shouldn't be a utopian dream; it should be reality. verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) viscous (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	propinquity	(n.) nearness, similarity	* verbiage (n.) wordiness; overabundance of words It was tough getting through all the verbiage in the 3,000 page document. Verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) Viscous (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	unwonted	(adj.) unusual verdant (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) viscous (adj.) green; fresh (specifically talking about plants or grass) We picnicked on the verdant lawn of the castle. After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	utopian	(adj.) impossible wish for things to be perfect plants or grass) viscous (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	verbiage	(n.) wordiness; overabundance of words viscous (adj.) thick and sticky (talking about fluids) After the oil spill, our clear water became a viscous mess	verdant		We picnicked on the verdant lawn of the castle.
	viscous		